

Buckingham Starts In Times Today

Jamie Buckingham, of Melbourne, a nationally-known religious editor and columnist, begins writing a weekly column for the Melbourne Times today.

His column, Perspective, will appear each Friday on the Times editorial page.

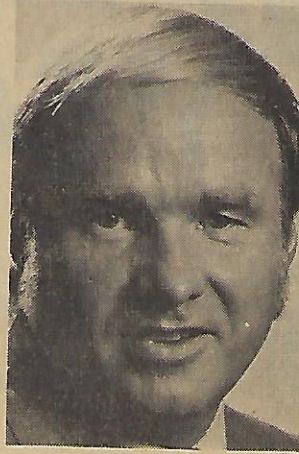

Buckingham, 40, a minister in this area for many years, is a roving editor for Guideposts magazine, an inter-faith monthly of two million circulation, published by Norman Vincent Peale. He is a columnist and editorial consultant for Logos Journal, a new religious magazine.

Buckingham is also the author of nine books, including the best-seller, Run Baby Run, with more than one million copies in print and soon to be a major motion picture.

Writing and speaking assignments have carried Buckingham throughout the world, from the jungles of South America to Czechoslovakia, where he says he was arrested last year while working with a Bible smuggler.

Buckingham, his wife Jackie and five children live at 1149 Sparkman St., Melbourne.
