

Associate Publishers Chosen

By National Courier Staff Writer

A Publisher's Board has been formed to take an overview of all editorial activities of Logos International Fellowship Inc. and to advise the publisher, Dan Malachuk.

Mr. Malachuk announced at the Plainfield, N.J., offices of Logos that the Publisher's Board will consist of:

Jamie Buckingham, Melbourne, Fla., pastor, well-known author of religious books, and—until recently—editor of Logos Journal magazine.

Viola Malachuk, Mendham, N.J., wife of the publisher and editor of the book division of Logos.

Bob G. Slosser, Mendham, co-author of "The Miracle of Jimmy Carter," former New York Times newsman, who is leaving his post as editor of the Logos newspaper, the National Courier.

Each member of the Publisher's Board becomes an associate publisher giving an overview to the Logos Journal, the National Courier, and Logos books.

"Logos has reached the point," Mr. Malachuk said, "where it must take steps to guarantee the integration and efficiency of its multi-faceted publishing operations.

"We have, therefore, taken this pioneering step to establish and maintain editorial policy, to seek the mind of Christ on directions the Lord would have us take, and in general to function as a Body of Christ in the editorial leadership of the company."

Mr. Buckingham and Mr. Slosser will devote much of their time to the writing of books for Logos. They also will continue as members of the Logos executive board, with Mr. Malachuk, A. J. Rainwater Jr., and Allen Rundle. Additional members of the Board of Directors are Dennis J. Bennett, Art Duple, David J. du Plessis, Ralph E. Haines Jr., A. F. Malachuk, Earl W. Morey Jr., and Jim Underwood.
